How burglars break your locks with ease

"People ask for trouble. We only oblige them."

That's one burglar's simple analysis of why burglaries account for 58 per cent of the major crimes reported in Alameda County. But it doesn't have to be that way.

"Fourty - six per cent, or nearly half of the entries made into Livermore homes last year required no force," said Sgt. Don Lee of the Livermore police. In most cases, this meant unlocked doors or open windows — mistakes that cost each victim approximately $300 for the average residential burglary.

The most common methods of forcibly entering a residence, which accounts for the other 54 per cent of entries made for the purpose of theft, are:

- Using a crowbar or large screwdriver to pry the door open enough to disengage the lock;
- Using a pair of heavy - duty pliers, usually either channel locks or locking pliers, to twist the doorknob enough to break the internal locking mechanisms;
- Using a large boot to kick the door in.

"Very few burglars break windows to enter — it makes too much noise," Lee said. But an abandoned ladder outside an empty home could prove too much temptation for the shyest of crooks.

There has never been an instance of a thief picking a lock in Lee's recollection, dashing the image of television spies opening complex locks in seconds. The procedure takes two tools, and "the other methods are a lot easier anyway," Lee says.

Burglary prevention is an inexpensive and painless way to avoid the heartbreak of losing family heirlooms or uninsured valuables, not to mention the possibility of vandalism.

Most homes in the valley were sold with simple push - button or twist - dial locks that are not adequate, in the opinion of local law enforcement agencies, to combat against the average burglar.

In most cases, Lee said, a burglar can put a crowbar between a door and jamb and spread the two apart enough so the locking mechanism is disengaged, opening the door in seconds.

Deadbolt locks provide a one-inch steel bar, usually 1/2-inch in diameter, as an additional deterrent to burglars. It is installed above the standard doorknob, and either twisted or keyed to lock and unlock.

Because of the two-inch screws used to install the lock and strike or strike - box, deadbolt locks provide excellent protection. In fact, Sgt. Lee has never heard of an instance where a deadbolt lock had been defeated.

To be continued tomorrow

— by Bill Cauble

This door, typical of many Livermore homes, is an easy mark for a burglar armed with a crowbar. With this tool — a large screwdriver also works quite well — a burglar easily can pry the door open enough to disengage the lock. Other popular methods of forcibly entering a residence include using pliers to twist a doorknob and thereby break the internal locking mechanism or simply wearing a large pair of boots and kicking the door down. An alert burglar, thanks to careless residents, need not even use force to enter a home — according to the Livermore Police Department, nearly half the entries made last year were done through unlocked doors and open windows.

'Can't say'

4-year-old picket continues — but why?

A representative of Millmen's Union 550 has sat outside American Building Components in Dublin for four years, protesting the carpenters' decision not to join their union.

DUBLIN — A car plastered with posters has been parked outside American Building Components on Dougherty Road for four years now.

It's not always the same car, not always the same person inside, but the intent is the same: Millmen's Union 550 has been picketing ABC for four years, and that must be some kind of a record.

It wasn't easy finding out what was going on out there. Attempts to discuss the picket with a fellow parked outside last week proved less than fascinating.

Why are you here, we asked. "Can't say," came the reply.

How long have you been here, we asked. "Can't say," came the reply.

Who are you? we asked. "Can't say," came the reply.

May we take a picture of the car, we asked. "If you want to," was the answer, and the man bounded out, standing behind the photographer to avoid being in the picture.

Efforts to talk with the Union representative fared equally poorly. Odus Howard said he wasn't the man to whom we should speak. "Mr. Bigby's the man you want, but he's never around," Howard said, correctly, we might add.

A call to the Union's lawyers proved just as fruitless.

"Mr. Rogers is in negotiations," we were told several times.

Even Ed Omernik of ABC was less than enthusiastic about discussing the marathon protest. "It's just one of those things we live with," he said. "They want our men to join the union. We held the last National Labor Relations Board election last year and the union didn't get one vote."

Omernik agreed they still have the right to sit out there if they want to, which apparently they do. "But they don't dare cross over the driveway onto the property. They know we could kill them if they do," Omernik said, figuratively we presume.

Jaycees' air show jeopardized

LIVERMORE — The annual Livermore Jaycees Air Show, scheduled for this Sunday, was in jeopardy of being cancelled as of press time last night.

Skip Claeson, representing the Jaycees, told the city council at its meeting last night his organization could not sponsor the event unless the city would allow the performers to operate without insurance. The performers, however, would be asked to sign a hold harmless agreement.

By such an agreement, the performers would waive their right to sue the city in the event of an accident.

The Jaycees last week approached the council with a request that insurance for the performers not be required. That request was denied 3-2.

Last night's request added the condition a hold harmless agreement would be secured from the performers.

The matter was tabled until later in the evening to enable the Jaycees to contact the city's insurance carrier for information on covering the performers.

However, the Jaycees already had contacted two of their carriers about the insurance and both have gone to Lloyds of London which has not responded, Claeson told the council.

He added, this is an unfavorable indication.

Also, city attorney Bob Logan told the council the hold harmless agreement would offer no protection to the city if a pilot were to be killed. The pilot's wife or children could sue, he explained.

Logan also said a wrongful death suit is very expensive — a "cheap one sues for $100,000 to $500,000 and attorneys' fees alone would be $15,000 to $25,000."

Councilman John Staley pointed out if an accident occurred and the city was sued it could bankrupt the general fund.

Accident victim dies of injuries

LIVERMORE — A Livermore woman who sustained injuries from a head-on crash in an April 24 accident on Sunol Road near Koopmann Road died yesterday morning in Highland Hospital in Oakland.

Angela Serdenia, 35, of 521 Meadowlark Street, was pronounced dead as the result of injuries suffered in the accident. The other driver in the accident, Joseph Rodrigues of Falcon Way in Livermore, was booked on suspicion of drunk driving immediately after he was released from Valley Memorial Hospital.

Briarhill urges anti-rezone stand

DUBLIN—Representatives of the Briarhill Homeowners Association last night urged the Dublin Chamber of Commerce to take a stand against the proposed rezoning of 23 acres next to the intersection of Dublin and San Ramon Valley Boulevards and bordering the backyards of Briarhill and Silvergate homeowners.

The proposed rezoning would change the properties from residential to commercial. The issue is before the Alameda County Board of Supervisors who have continued it until thir June 3 meeting.

Pete Haggerty, president of the homeowners association, argued that their is already too much commercially - zoned property in the area. "There is more commercial property available per population in Dublin than in any other community within a 30-mile radius," he said.

The zoning change, he argued, goes against an Environmental Impact Report prepared by the County Planning staff. "This would be one more nail in the coffin of Dublin. We'll be the first community in history to have an urban renewal problem before we have a community," Haggerty said.

The Briarhill Homeowners Association told the chamber directors that they want the area down - zoned to residential.

They also urged that any rezoning decision be postponed until the county general plan is issued. Supervisor John Murphy told the group it is impossible to predict when the plan will be ready.

The Supervisor made few other comments, but took copious notes on both the chamber's and the association's presentations. In April, Murphy had argued for the zoning change.

Rev. Ward Tannenberg of the Valley Christian Community Center presented the case in favor of rezoning. His church has outgrown its current facilities and wants to sell the land. If it remains residential, according to Tannenberg, it would be undesirable.

The chamber directors planned to take a position on the issue before the June 3 hearing.

LUCKY STORES comes to The Times this Wednesday

'Supes need consumer input'

Vincent aims to break up 'buddy system'

Irene Vincent thinks the Alameda County Board of Supervisors needs the realistic input of a consumer. And as a candidate for First District Supervisor, she thinks her track record shows she's just the one to break up the buddy system on the board.

"I'm tired of decisions being made in bar rooms over drinks," Vincent said. "We need a more realistic angle on the board, and I think a woman's impact might help change the direction of the board.

"Not just because I'm a woman, but because I live every day with the problems that most families are into. I'm more consumer-oriented because I have to be," she said.

The 47-year-old Fremont woman gained area attention in her fight with the State Public Utilities Commission over the quality of water.

Leader of People for Better Water, Vincent has become known as the "Clean Water Lady," and though she believes her participation has given her valuable experience, she insists she is not a one-issue canididate.

"People in the valley are concerned whether someone from Fremont can represent their interests," Vincent admitted. "But I ask them to look to the record of my involvements. I am able to get at the heart of the problem and cut through miles of red tape."

And Vincent noted that valley residents, even with a supervisor residing in their part of the district, have not been getting enough support.

"The whole district isn't getting the representation they deserve," she said. "Where have the supes been in mental health? Why have they let Santa Rita run down?"

Vincent proposes that supervisors be limited to two terms. "People can get worn out after a while. I want to break up the buddy system and let fresh ideas come in all the time," she said.

She also favors making the post into a full-time position, rather than the part-time one it has been traditionally. "If it were full-time then perhaps the supervisors would deserve the $21,000 salary they are getting," she said. Vincent also questions the practice of having supervisors vote on their own salary increases.

The full-time salary and two-term limit, Vincent hopes, will encourage other people to get involved in the board. "We don't always need attorneys and businessmen as supervisors. Let's look to some women, for example, who are willing to look into the job and make some changes," she said.

Vincent recognizes land use as the biggest political issue in the valley. She favors local control over land use and opposes large new developments such as New Town.

"Cities should be able to control the lands surrounding them," Vincent declared. "If New Town comes in, it can affect the air and water quality. The schools and libraries needed there are sure to add additional costs the taxpayer can't afford."

Vincent said she understands that farmers who can't make a living off their land might wish to sell. "But we have to stand back and look at the overall picture. Is (development) best for all the people? The quality of life is being overlooked by those who are pushing the development."

If growth in the Las Positas area would go beyond the 2 per cent growth rate established by Livermore, Vincent said she would vote against Geldermann's right to develop outside the city.

Vincent is against the "super sewer," an effluent disposal pipeline stretching from Fremont into the San Francisco Bay near Oakland. The Livermore - Amador Valley Wastewater Management Agency's pipeline will hook into the "super sewer" near Castro Valley.

"The super sewer is a boondoggle to the taxpayer," Vincent said. "It's for the benefit of the developers and not the small homeowners."

Dumping effluent into the San Francisco Bay, Vincent said, is not the answer. "I'm not sure it won't cause the same pollution problems in the Bay that we already have," she said. "We have to look toward recycling our water, sewage and solid waste."

Referring to recent sparring sessions between LAVWMA officials and the Board of Supervisors over the size of the proposed LAVWMA pipeline, Vincent said she opposes it in any size.

But she dismissed the suggestion her stand on the pipeline might conflict with efforts by her Valley area manager Lila Euler in her capacity as LAVWMA chairwoman. "We don't have to agree on every issue," she remarked.

"I'm not for no growth," the glider pilot and former head of a modeling agency said. "But we have to slow down and look at things. When we can't look down the street because the air is polluted, when we can't drink the water because it is too dirty, then we have to make some decisions."

Two booked for possessing pot for sale

PLEASANTON — Two men stopped by police Thursday because their car had no registration were arrested after officers found seven lids (approximately seven ounces) of marijuana in their possession.

Officer Jay Graves was driving routine patrol when he saw the car pull out of the Amador Shopping Center onto Santa Rita Road. After noticing the absence of registration tabs on the rear license plate, Graves pulled the car over near the Pleasanton Hotel.

While talking to a passenger in the car, Graves noticed suspected marijuana seeds on the floorboard and a pipe on the rear seat. A search of the car turned up seven baggies of marijuana and $683 in cash hidden in various parts of the car.

Booked on suspicion of possession of marijuana for sale were Richard Steven Clark, 21, of Newark, and Thomas Hans Albert, 18, of Fremont.

A list of five possible suspects was being reviewed by police.

Burglars take valuables from Mohr Avenue apartment

PLEASANTON — Burglars used heavy - duty pliers to wrench open the front doorknob to Charles Eugene Glahn's Mohr Avenue apartment last week and took $536 in valuables.

Missing items include a $200 leather jacket, $18 in silver coins, two jackets, an opal tie tack, and a 14-carat wedding band with four diamonds.

Police have no suspects in the case.

Juveniles arrested for possessing marijuana

LIVERMORE — Two youths walking down First Street early Saturday were arrested for possessing a quantity of marijuana after police spotted one of the suspects attempt to hide something under a parked van.

Officer John Brady watched the youths as they walked eastbound on First Street about 12:15 Saturday morning. When they saw the marked car, one of the youths reportedly ducked and attempted to place something under a van at the Groth Bros. lot.

When the officer detected an odor of liquor and asked if they had beer, one of the youths opened a bag he was carrying and showed Brady seven lids of marijuana.

The juveniles, both Granada High students aged 15 and 16 years, were cited and released to their parents with notices to appear in court.

Committee to review airport T-hangar bid

In other business scheduled for today's meeting, committee members will consider a proposed policy for setting fuel mark-up prices; whether to subscribe to a computer read-out for about $100 which will supply a list of aircraft owners and pilots in the Bay Area (in order to mail them information on the Livermore facilities), and a draft of a policy outlining the terms under which fueling would be provided for aircraft in nangars.

Open space issue

DANVILLE — Fifth supervisorial district candidate Eric Hasseltine has called for flexibility in the planning of open space.

"Open space is the simplest of concepts and yet one of the most complicated issues," Hasseltine said at a recent meeting of the Farm Bureau in Knightsen.

He said the term is ambiguous, noting that it can be applied to lands in public or private ownership, with or without public access and designated permanent or temporary.

He said there should be a third category, in addition to urban growth and open space, to designate land currently in agricultural use.

"Landowners need some degree of flexibility in land use policies as a protection against poor farming years," he said.

Coordination asked

DANVILLE — Fifth supervisorial candidate Earl MacIntyre has called for a new role for county government, coordinating services between cities and unincorporated areas.

"Coordinated governmental services could be an alternative to regional government at less cost to the taxpayers," the former Pittsburg city councilman told the San Ramon Valley Chamber of Commerce recently.

MacIntyre said he is opposed to regional government, which he said adds the costs of another layer of government.

"All the separate taxing agencies that appear on your tax statements are another area that should be reviewed for consolidation," MacIntyre said. Many of the agencies are small service areas administered by the Board of Supervisors.

No on 15

By a three to one vote, the California State Energy Commission voted last week to oppose Proposition 15, the Nuclear Initiative, on the June 8 ballot.

Commissioners Bob Moretti, Alan Pasternak and Richard Tuttle voted for a resolution opposing the nuclear initiative. Commissioner Ronald Docter opposed it; Commission Chairman Richard Maullin abstained.

The Stouts have worked closely with Vincent on the Niles - Union City Water problem.

Reservations may be made by calling 455-6847.

The propositions

A look at June's ballot

Editor's Note: The June 8 primary ballot will include 15 propositions on which Californians must vote. The Times begins today its review, based on Associated Press reports, of the four bond measures, 10 constitutional amendments and one voter initiative that make up the 15 propositions.

SACRAMENTO AP — California voters face $1.025 billion in new state bond proposals on the June 8 ballot, the largest bond total in a single statewide election in 16 years.

On the ballot are four measures to provide $200 million for local school construction, $500 million for Cal-Vet loans, $175 million to improve local sewers and water systems, and $150 million for community college construction projects.

At present, California has $5.5 billion in outstanding bonds to pay off plus another $1.1 billion in bonds that have been authorized by voters in past elections but not sold.

The bond issues, proposition 1 through 4, are:

PROP. 1 — This $200 million school bond measure would allow the state to replace rundown local schools with new buildings, and is designed to encourage design of buildings to save energy.

Local districts would then purchase the buildings from the state under 30-year lease - purchase agreements.

Supporters say it would save taxpayers $10 million because the state can sell bonds at interest rates 1.5 per cent or more below the rates of local bonds.

Foes say the lease - purchase agreements are a way of getting around the traditional two - thirds vote required for local school bonds, and that the measure is designed to make it easier for local districts to get deeper in debt, and give the state the risk in case of default.

PROP. 2 — This is a $500 million extension of the 54 - year - old Cal-Vet home and farm loan program, and would be the 15th time the program has been refinanced by bond issues since its inception in 1921.

Backers say it gives war veterans low - interest home loans at no cost to the state and should be continued on grounds that it helps stimulate the construction industry and provides veterans "a helping hand, rather than a handout."

Official opposition this year comes from officials of the Libertarian Party, who criticize the Cal-Vet program as "a social welfare program" benefiting veterans at the expense of most other Californians.

PROP. 3 — Titled the "California Safe Drinking Water Bond Law of 1976," this is a $175 million extension of program started in 1960 to help cities and local districts finance improvements in sewage disposal and fresh water systems.

Nearly $2.25 billion worth of these bonds have been authorized in past years, of which $300 million have not yet been sold.

Backers say 12 million Californians still rely on drinking water systems which fail to meet state water quality standards, and that the bonds are financed by local districts without expense to the state.

Foes say the work should be done on a pay - as - you - go basis, not with selected districts getting state funds. As in most bond issues, foes cite the danger of extensive borrowing and the potential of a New York style fiscal crisis in California.

PROP. 4 — This $150 million community college bond issue provides construction grant money to the state's 93 community colleges. The state's general taxpayers, not the districts, then pay off the bonds.

This would be a second extension of a state matching fund program started a dozen years ago which has totaled $158 million so far. It provides the state share of college construction costs now shared by federal, state and local government under a formula that varies the shares in accord with the wealth of local college districts. Backers say it is needed to guarantee the state will meet its long - term commitments to the community colleges. Foes say those commitments can be met from the state's offshore oil and other annual revenues without the interest costs of long - term bonds.

Love those Yuccas? come to Berkeley

BERKELEY — Yucca enthusiasts need not trek out to the southern deserts to see a spectacular spring display of the plants but can save themselves a trip by visiting the wooded hills above Berkeley.

Three plants of the "yucca whipplei" ranging up to 12 feet with cream white blossoms extending two to three feet are in "full blast" now at the East Bay Regional Park District's famed Botanical Garden of California native plants in Tilden Regional Park.

Transplanted from their native hibitat in the San Jacinto mountain range in the Palm Springs area, the Tilden Park yuccas dominate the desert Section of the Garden, located near the Visitor's Center. Additional color flames throughout the Garden from the ubiquitous California poppy.

An outstanding collection of native plants, garnered from the Oregon to the Arizona - Mexico borders, the Garden is laid out in many geographical sections.

In each section are plants of varied areas in the state, such as the sea coast bluffs and coastal mountains, interior valleys, arid foothills.

Pain in the ash

Battling the blight

A blight that hits Modesto ash trees has caused them to shed millions of leaves — but the trees will recover, according to Thomas E. Shoemaker, Alameda County Agricultural Commissioner.

Tree owners should continue their regular watering and fertilizing programs, Shoemaker said, but they should emphasize deep - watering of roots.

"Placing a slow - running hose in the zone between the trunk and the dripline will do the job," he said. "Water on a regular schedule."

The blight is known as anthracnose and is caused by the fungus gloeosporium aridum, which infects the leaves as they emerge each spring. The fungus spores are spread in water, which is the reason the disease occurs annually in the spring in this part of the country, the Commissioner pointed out. This year the occurrence is more widespread than normal.

According to Shoemaker because of our dry winter the Modesto ash trees were in much better shape this year than they have been in recent years. "The long rainless spell was probably a help in bringing most leaves to full and healthy expansion. But the recent and substantial rain suddenly spread the fungus to the expanded leaves and that's what caused the current defoliation."

"There will soon be a new mantle of leaves to replace those lost and the trees are not in jeopardy," Shoemaker said.

Model playground is unveiled at Donlon

Six Donlon School students have constructed a model of an environmental playground the school community parents and staff plan to construct in the upcoming months.

As a spur to obtaining the materials needed for the play area, to be located directly behind the main office, the parent club and students are planning a carnival for Saturday, May 8 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the school located at 4160 Dorman Road in Pleasanton.

The multi-purpose play facility will be ideal for youngsters who like to climb, crawl, bounce around and explore.

One of the major events of the entire school year, the carnival May 8 will feature game booths (cake walk, country store ring toss, and a new one, spin-a-plate), a boutique sale (many kinds of handmade items), Bicentennial silk screening (bring your own shirt and have a Bicentennial design silk screened on it), quilt raffle, snack bar (hot dogs, sno cones, cupcakes, and soft drinks), cotton candy, balloons, and cook books put together by Donlon parents, staff and students.

The quilt has a Bicentennial theme and the blocks were made by kindergarten students in Mrs. Jan Murphy's class. It will be raffled off at the carnival May 8, with all of the proceeds being used for kindergarten playground equipment.

Chief's warning

Fire season heats up now

District Chief Fred R. Terwilliger of the California Division of Forestry (C.D.F.) announced last weekend that the 1976 fire season has opened.

Terwilliger speculated that the potential exists for one of the most disastrous seasons in years. He attributed that to dryness in vegitation.

Based on rainfall counts for 1975-76, the fire hazard could near the crisis year of 1924, one of the worst in the state's history in terms of acres of vegetation burned.

Public assistance will be vital, Terwilliger said, in curbing the dangers. Extra care must be taken with campfires and barbecues.

Witnesses can call 862-2196, when persons are discovered touching off illegal fires.

The State of California offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons who willfully ignites a fire on property for which the state is primarily responsible for protection.

Cartoonist Eric Martin is inspired by local personalities and environment as in his comic rendering of downtown Sunol (above). "I want to develop my own style of drawing and not copy from any other cartoonist or artist," he declares.

Young cartoonist has his own style

"I generally begin sketching characters by drawing the nose first," said Eric Martin, "I don't know why, but all my drawings develop from the nose."

Eric is a young talented cartoonist living in Sunol who gets a lot of inspiration for his personalities from the area. "I use to live in Fremont," he said, "but living in Sunol has really turned me on to improving my ability as there is so much atmosphere and peacefulness here.

"I've been doodling and sketching as long as I can remember," says the fourteen-year-old. "My father is really the good artist and is my greatest help and critic. He tells me when I'm not doing a good job." This criticism doesn't bother Eric as he feels "you have to be able to take criticism if you want to improve your work."

This year as a freshman at Foothill High School, Eric is taking his first art lessons. This year is also his first attempt at painting. Eric hasn't decided if he perfers sketching over painting as he "enjoys both of them very much."

"I'd like to have my own comic book some day," he said. It would be a book based on people and situations he knows. "You have to keep with the times so people will be able to relate to the characters," he explains.

"Sometimes I'm sitting there in school and I will see someone or something and sketch it down on a piece of paper then later I'll develop it more fully into a cartoon figure." Eric said.

"I want to develop my own style of drawing and not copy from any other cartoonist or artist. That way when people look at my work, they will know right away who the artist is."

Eric does most of his sketching in the early morning hours about 3 a.m. "That's when it's nice and quite and I can create better. During the day there is always something else to get involved with," he contends.

For his more elaborate work, Eric sketches in pencil first and then goes over it in ink. He has also learned to incorporate shading into his drawings to give more depth and dimension.

Valley residents may get a glimpse of some of Eric's talents as posters promoting the sale of the Pleasanton Bicentennial Pictorial Book will be done by Eric. Reservations for the book are still open and a check in the amount of $3.95 made out to the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission, mailed to 4848 Treewood Court, Pleasanton, will reserve a copy. The book is scheduled to be available in June.

Although a greater portion of Eric'swork is for his pleasure, he recently was paid for doing some character sketching "When the check ($25) came in the mail, I thought how neat! Man, that's a lot of money," he said. "I wish I could get paid like that all the time."

The day may well come when Eric may be doing just that, receiving pay for his work as he intends to continue his education to develop his talents and hopefully become a successful cartoonist.

From the work he is presently creating, it looks as though success, some day, will be coming his way.

Jane Armstrong of Livermore will employ the Navajo spindle and loom in a special demonstration at the upcoming Livermore Art Association art show.

Navajo textile art to be featured at spring art show

Jane Armstrong will demonstrate Navajo spinning and weaving techniques as part of the art - in - action exhibit at the annual spring art show to be hosted May 8 and 9 by the Livermore Art Association.

The show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day at The Barn on Pacific Avenue in Livermore.

Art for Jane has been a life - long interest. Since her childhood in Illinois, she has sketched for her own enjoyment but does not show her work.

Jane first became interested in spinning and weaving four years ago upon receiving her grandmother's 170-year-old spinning wheel. She repaired the wheel and began taking spinning lessons. It was a natural progression from spinning wool to weaving it into interesting pieces in a free, unregimented style (off-loom weaving).

Jane, a resident of Livermore for several years with her husband and daughter, has demonstrated spinning and weaving to Livermore school children. For the demonstration she dons a colonial costume and uses her antique spinning wheel. Mrs. Armstrong also offers piano instruction, music being her "second love."

Last fall, Jane captured the Best of Show honors for textile arts at the Alameda County Fair. Her sixteen - year - old daughter, Janie, often helps in the preparation of the wool, washing, carding and teasing it as a preliminary to spinning.

In her weaving, Jane uses all handspun and naturally-dyed wools which she secures from several sources including California, New Zealand and Oregon. She finds the wools to be of differing textures and oiliness which take dyes in varying degrees. The natural dyes she employs are from barks, berries, flowers and fruit.

At her art-in-action demonstration, Jane will use wools dyed with cactus fruit from the prickly pear, some fresh, some fermented, depending on the shade desired. The dye results in shades from yellow to bright orange.

The design Jane will weave at the show will be an original modern style, rather than a typical Indian motif. Jane will appear in Indian garb, using the complicated Navajo loom, but the pattern will be authentic "Jane Armstrong" growing from her spontaneous inspiration.

MERIT!

'Enriched Flavor'™ process prompts unprecedented response to taste of new low tar MERIT.

Smokers are talking about a new kind of cigarette.

It's MERIT. The remarkable new low tar cigarette made with the 'Enriched Flavor.'™ process.

MERIT has only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Yet, taste tests proved that MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than cigarettes having up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested in what people like yourself are writing to us about MERIT.

inside the arts

Winning entries in the spring art show sponsored for a 19th year by the Livermore Art Association were declared this weekend.

The judges, whose combined experience and backgrounds are impressive, believed the quality of the award - winners to be "very fine" although they expressed disappointment at the poor turnout of 150 entries given the reputation of Livermore's artistic community.

For the first time the LAA offered two divisions of competition — general and amateur — giving untried artists a chance for recognition and exposure. The spring show opens with a preview Friday, May 7 continuing May 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an admission - free public exhibition at The Barn in Livermore.

The following awards in the general division were made:

In the oil category — first to Margaret Frank of Livermore for "Magnets III," second to Makiko Marshall of Livermore for "Mission Bell," and honorable mention to Ed Bourinskie of Pleasanton and Larry Souza of Castro Valley.

In the watercolor category — first to Claire Haratani of Livermore for "Winery Door," second to Larry Souza for "Vancouver Vintage," third to Mary Kryvoruka of Livermore and honorable mention to Vicky Goettsche and Shirley Bray of Livermore.

In the mixed media category — first to Gloria Taylor of Livermore for "Safeway," second to Don Larsen of Livermore for "Downtown," third to Pat Kelley of Livermore for "And Freeze," and honorable mention to Gloria Taylor.

Honorable mention was given to Bill Ostle of Pleasanton and Ina Lefter of Livermore for textile entries; to Jan Wax of Livermore for a pottery entry; and to Don Homan of Livermore for a wood sculpture.

Amateur award - winners will be published in Thursday's edition of Inside the Arts.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The talkative declarer would take a quick look at dummy and remark, "I really should have bid seven." Then he would lay down his ace of spades. West would show out and after some thunderous silence and slow play to the next several tricks, he would find himself one trick short of his small-slam contract.

This would not happen to a quiet, careful declarer. He would know that a 5-0 suit break occurs four per cent of the time.

He would check to see if he could guard against this unpleasant possibility and find that the lead of a low trump toward dummy's ten would guard against five trumps in either hand. He would calculate quickly that a low spade would risk 30 points to gain 1430. He would say to himself, "The odds are good," and lead toward that ten spot.

West would show out, but South wouldn't care. He would ruff the heart return after East took his jack of trumps, enter dummy with a diamond, lead the three of spades, finesse the eight and score his small slam.

Ask the Jacobys

Some 30 years ago one of our Oklahoma readers picked up ace and a small spade and 11 solid diamonds. He wonders what the odds against holding 11-2-0-0 distribution are.

They aren't so great. You should expect to pick up an 11-card suit about once every 35,000 deals and 11-2-0-0 about once every 100,000. Of course, that means a lot of bridge, but Oswald Jacoby has held two 11-card suits in his 60 years at the table.

JCs revamp AV Classic

The 15th Amador Basketball Classic will take on a new date, some new faces and a new sponsor in 1976.

The dates will be Dec. 8-11, one week earlier than in recent seasons.

Added to the tournament field are four teams making their first ABC appearance. They are Stagg of Stockton, MVAL defending champion Washington, Northgate, runner - up in the DVAL, and EBAL newcomer Foothill.

Most important, the Classic, which was near extinction last winter because of fading revenue, has a new sponsor, the Pleasanton Jaycees.

The Jaycees expect to add the ABC to a list of activities they have successfully promoted in recent years. Glen Shafto of the Jaycees will co-direct the Classic along with Skip Mohatt, Amador coach and director of student activities. The Jaycees will attempt to promote the tournament among local businesses and residents.

Aiding their efforts will be one of the strongest fields in tournament history.

Heading the list of four teams expected to battle for the championship are Northgate, Bishop O'Dowd, Stagg and Washington.

O'Dowd will be making its 10th appearance in the Amador Classic. The Dragons hold the record for the most tourney titles (four) and will feature one of their stronger teams next season. O'Dowd reached the Catholic Athletic League playoffs last season despite the loss of 6-7 pivotman Guy Williams.

Williams will be back next season along with seven other lettermen, and two other starters.

Washington is expected to improve next year on a 19-6 record, since all but one player returns.

Young Northgate will also return plenty of veterans from a team that challenged powerhouse College Park in the Diablo Valley last season. Northgate loses only two players to graduation.

As usual Stagg of Stockton will be a favorite for tournament honors. The Delta Kings have earned three Central Valley championships in the past five years. Stagg holds the second longest winning streak among major high school teams in the state, winning 57 straight between 1972 and 1974.

Ironically, Amador snapped that string.

The host Dons have won their own tournament twice. Next year they could make it three championships. Six members of last season's EBAL title - winning squad return, bolstered by graduates from a championship junior varsity team.

Foothill appears the hard-luck team after a dismal opening season in varsity basketball The Falcons will return an entire team, however.

Sacred Heart will return to the Amador Classic this season after a rebuilding year. The Irish last appeared in Pleasanton in 1974.

Arroyo, usually a power in the Hayward Area Athletic League, will come in with new faces, and no returners. The Dons won the HAAL's junior varsity crown, however, and should be representative.

Foothill problems discussed

PLEASANTON— A growing number of parents, staff membrs and students at Foothill High School are becoming concerned over two problems they believe affect them every day of the week.....the question of an open campus and speeding along Bernal Avenue.

At a recent meeting on open campus, views of students were presented to parents and faculty in attendance.

Roy Goble, student chairman of the open campus meeting, said students believe they "deserve" and open campus and feel they can handle the responsibility.

At present, the Amador school district's two other campuses are "open"—permitting students to go off campus during their free periods.

Parents, however, have cited the safety factor. Foothill is located on Foothill Boulevard and entrance and exit from the campus can be difficult.

According to a Foothill High student newspaper article, parents also expressed worry over traffic, the relative inexperience of student drivers and the time factor. Parents think students won't have enough time to eat and still be back to school on time.

Parents and staff present at the meeting reportedly asked students to review reasons FOR an open campus and return with substantiated evidence.

The second concern, that of speeding along Bernal Avenue, comes as the result of several accidents, including a fatality, in recent months.

The fatality was from Foothill High School.

The posted speed slimits on Bernal are 45 miles per hour in the straight - away and 30 miles around the turn.

Bernal serves as a main artery linking residents of the Foothill Road area with the rest of Pleasanton.

While 13 colonies joined against George III, Florida, acquired from Spain in 1763 as a result of the French and Indian War, remained loyal to the King. As Philadelphia patriots declared their independence, St. Augustine Loyalists burned effigies of John Hancock and Samuel Adams. For a while, east Florida became an armed camp as soldiers, supplies and equipment flooded the small ports. Hundreds of Loyalist refugees from the wartorn colonies settled in and around the former Spanish fortifications, The World Almanac recalls.
